

G. O. P. WILL WIN
DECLARES BURTON

Former Senator from Ohio, Addressing Party Men Says Harmony Spells Victory.

TARIFF TO PLAY GREAT PART

As an evangel of republican unity and victory, Theodore E. Burton of Ohio, former United States senator, addressed a representative gathering of Omaha and Nebraska republicans at the Fontenelle hotel Wednesday.

In token of party solidarity there were on the platform with Senator Burton men who in the past have differed upon matters of party principles, but who shook hands amid loud applause. Seated beside the distinguished Ohioan were J. H. Millard, Norris Brown and J. M. Thurston, former United States senators; Chester H. Aldrich, former governor; former Congressman Sloan, Victor Rosewater, Walter A. George, Peter Jansen of Beatrice, Ernest Pollard of Nehawka, former congressman; R. B. Howell, national committeeman; Judge Epperson of Clay Center, Tom Majors of Peru, Ross L. Hammond of Fremont, and John Berger.

Senator Millard called the meeting to order with a felicitous remark about the harmonious aspect of the gathering.

Introduced by Brown, Morris Brown, who introduced Senator Burton, paid a tribute to the state of Ohio as "the mother of presidents." He expressed the hope that when Mr. Burton shall have become president his visits to Omaha will be more frequent, and he said that this is a time when the country calls for the wisdom of its best statesmen.

He referred to Senator Burton as a man equipped with ability necessary to fill the office of president. Senator Burton began his address from the platform, but after speaking a few minutes, stepped down to a level with the crowd. His earnest manner of expression and his thoughtful style of presenting his views on the European war, tariff, republicanism and other subjects won a strong place in the hearts of his audience.

Senator Burton began his address from the platform, but after speaking a few minutes, stepped down to a level with the crowd. His earnest manner of expression and his thoughtful style of presenting his views on the European war, tariff, republicanism and other subjects won a strong place in the hearts of his audience.

Referring to the McKinley club, whose members had much to do with getting the senator here, the speaker says the country owes much to McKinley, whom he knew as a child. He said McKinley gave this country a new impetus in foreign relations and created a new national dignity.

In consideration of the United States and the war, he said: "We have not the slightest appreciation of pending results. We are like the tourist at the foot of the mountain—he sees the mountain top, but cannot view what lies beyond. There has been nothing of greater significance since the Christian era. Political and social economics will change for better or worse. It is better that it should be fought to a decisive finish, else there will be another conflict and we inevitably would be involved."

"We should prepare adequately, but not extravagantly. We need not have a blue-jean in our hands, but we do not want to be belittled, because we are not ready. Let us be strictly neutral, enjoying our magnificent isolation. After the war, let it be said of us that we had justice and fairness for all."

Senator Burton referred to this nation's progress in wealth as being the marvel of the world, and he spoke of the era of regulation of great wealth. His hope was for a rational adjustment of problems affecting labor and capital, employ and employer.

Democrats Resist Principles. Taking up the republican party as a standard for progress, the senator expressed his belief that the political and social welfare of the country will be promoted best by the republican organization. He did not condemn the democratic party with one fell swoop, but threw the mantle of charity around it, commiserating that party because it did not have men who really understand the country's needs.

The democratic party was cited for having deserted principles for political expediency, while the republican party was upheld for its steadfastness in times of victory and defeat.

"Defeat of the republican party in 1912 and 1913," he said, "was due largely on account of mismanagement regarding the tariff. There was an impression that the tariff had to do with high prices, whereas it was a fact that there was world-wide phenomenon of high prices. These high prices were attributable to increased demands of our modern life—more luxuries and comforts. You could not find with a microscope an instance of lower prices under the Underwood-Simmons acts. I believe in protection which is ample and permanent. The interest of the consumer should be conserved and production also should be given to the sources of our supplies. I am tired of voting on inaccurate and incomplete information furnished by persons of one-sided interests. An investigation should be made of the entire country and the voters given the facts. You can trust the people when the facts are given."

Senator Burton predicted that at the close of the war there will be conditions which will call for a more serious consideration of the tariff question than has been given this subject for twenty years. The division in the republican party was referred to in this manner: "Personal rivalry has had much to do with the differences. Some were wedded to old ideas—they were not in touch with the progress of the times. Let us get together with a united front and face the common enemy. Let there be good will, unity and harmony and then we will conquer and be invincible. Republicans and progressives have stood shoulder-to-shoulder in the past on great principles. Come together now so that there will not be a vestige of difference left. Republicans have been progressives since the days of Lincoln."

The senator favored the initiative and referendum when applied to such matters as woman suffrage and the liquor question, but he contended there must be a civic righteousness if the people would have good officials and good laws. He does not look upon the initiative and referendum as a panacea.

"Cynicism of the people leads to nomination of injudicious candidates, was a thought he offered. "If you will abate your selfishness in public matters you need not worry over the methods. Government depends upon the traditions, ideals and sacrifices of the individual. The time for regeneration in our country is at hand. Disregard and callousness of duties to our government should be abated."

Scenes Would Be Reform. Pseudo-reformers, who assume self-imposed obligations of trying to uplift others were severely condemned. They were pictured as preferring graveyards, lowering clouds and black aspects to things that are grand, noble and really uplifting.

"Give us more charity. Drive away the spirit of criticism, backbiting and carping," was the senator's plea. Among the out-of-town attendants were: Senator Mallory of Alliance; C. H. Gustafson, Mead; George Wolf, Fremont; L. D. Richards, Fremont; E. J. Hamer, Lincoln; Frank Currie, Broken Bow; Adam Bede, Minnesota; Senator Kohl, Wayne (dem.); Representative Meares, Wayne; Senator Dougherty, Overton; Senator Spirk, Saline; Representative Akeley, Nance; Representative Chambers, Dakota; W. C. May, Gothenburg, and Senator Sandall of York.

Soldiers of Villa
Desert to American Border by Hundreds

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11.—According to advices just received, the State department announced today, "General Carranza has given assurances that the question of a settlement of the border troubles will be disposed of in a few days. Orders have been issued for the Mexican secret service to assist the Mexican military authorities in locating and punishing offenders operating in the vicinity of the international line."

General Villa was reported at Molinas, between Cananea and Nogales, yesterday, waiting for a train to take him to Nogales. About 100 Villa deserters are reported to have crossed to the American side at Naco and more are reported following every night. The State department is advised that Villa has about 7,000 men near Naco, 2,000 near Cananea and Villa Verdes and about 1,000 with him. A large part of his artillery is said to be at Naco.

"While the State department has not withdrawn its advice to American citizens to remain out of Mexico until conditions therein have become more normal," today's announcement said, "it emphasizes the advisability of American citizens remaining out of territory not under the effective control of the recognized de facto government."

The American consul at Juarez is warning Americans to leave the state of Chihuahua before there is a suspension of all railroad communication, which is now threatened. Most of the Americans in the Juarez districts are Mormons.

Zealandia Outside Three-Mile Limit, is British Belief WASHINGTON, Nov. 11.—British authorities here investigating the reported forcible search of the American steamer Zealandia at Progreso, Mexico, by a party from a British cruiser have information which leads them to believe the Zealandia when searched, was lying more than three miles off shore and, therefore, not in a neutral port, but on the high seas. They are investigating further, and the State department is making inquiries.

Latest information to British sources is that the Zealandia, which has been suspected of being engaged in unneutral operations since it cleared mysteriously from Pensacola, Fla., last month was intending to go from the Mexican port to Sweden. It carried rosin, which is used for making shrapnel.

CREIGHTON READY FOR NOTRE DAME

Coach Well Pleased with Condition of Team Which Will Meet the Hoosiers Saturday.

TORCHLIGHT PARADE PLANNED

The Creighton team will receive its final workout today for the big game against Notre Dame tomorrow afternoon. Coach Mills is well pleased with the condition of the men and the working of the team, and feels certain that the eleven will give a good account of itself against the Hoosiers.

Yesterday afternoon the Creighton players were drilled on the Port Omaha sod, while Creighton field was being smoothed and made ready for the big contest. The scrubs were lined up to represent the Notre Dame players and formations, while the varsity was shown how to smash up these plays.

While the general opinion in Omaha is that the visitors will win, Creighton's remarkable showing against St. Thomas last week leads many to believe that the Blues will score on Harper's men. The "Creighton line, averaging 200 pounds, is expected to play an important part in tomorrow's game. Gray and Stapleton at guard and Wise and Captain Shannon at tackle may be counted upon to open up holes in the opposing line for the Creighton backs to slip through. Brennan, Hale, Haney and Flood are dangerous men on the wings, and will prove difficult obstacles for attempted end runs. Burford, the All-Missouri valley valley center, will probably not be in the game, and while his loss will be severely felt, he has an excellent substitute in Kamaniski, who formerly starred at Bellevue and is holding the center position at Creighton the second year. Burford was out with the squad Monday, believing his injury from the Wesleyan game to be sufficiently healed, but was obliged to give up attempting to play.

Nigro at quarterback has shown himself a capable field general, who will be in a large measure responsible for Creighton's showing. Platt and Flanagan in the backfield are whirlwinds, being particularly adept at open-field running, in which their work this year has been spectacular. Lutes at fullback is a demon on secondary defense, stopping runners who succeed in penetrating the line.

Expect to Score on Hoosiers. Coach Mills has given the team a number of pep talks and tricks which ought to prove a surprise even to the experienced Hoosiers, and the general belief around the campus is that Creighton will succeed in doing what South Dakota and the Army, eleven failed to perform, scoring against Notre Dame.

The Notre Dame players will reach Omaha today and will participate in a torchlight parade tonight along with Mills' aggregation. Four bands will play and practically the entire student body will be out boosting for one of the biggest football games Omaha has seen.

Grey and Asquith Defend Haldane in Reply to Questions

LONDON, Nov. 11.—Sir Edward Grey, the British foreign secretary, told the House of Commons today that he had expressed a desire to resign at the time Viscount Haldane left the cabinet.

"But for a crisis in the public affairs I would have done so," said the foreign secretary. When the new coalition cabinet was formed last May, Viscount Haldane was succeeded as lord high chancellor by Baron Buckmaster of Cheddington.

Premier Asquith paid a tribute to Viscount Haldane, saying: "He rendered an inestimable service when in the war office."

Replying to a request to lay the papers on the table respecting the Antwerp expedition, Premier Asquith declined while the war was in progress. He added: "Mr. Churchill, (formerly first lord of the admiralty), may treat with indifference the allegations against him. He has a good record and will be amply justified when the full story is told."

Sir Edward Grey's expression of regret was in reply to a question whether Viscount Haldane had been assisting in the administration of the foreign office. The secretary went on to say that Lord Haldane had at no time taken part in the work at the foreign office, either before or during the war, except with the full knowledge and consent of himself and important matters with the authority of the premier and those primarily responsible.

Personally he regarded Viscount Haldane's withdrawal from the government a very great loss to the public service. Sir Edward added: "I myself expressed to the premier my desire to resign at the same time, and but for a crisis in the public affairs, I would have done so. If Lord Haldane's services were available in any way for which I were responsible I would consider it in public interest that they should be utilized."

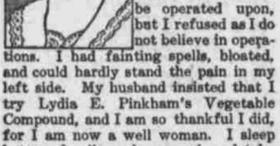

Sir Edward said he thought it was right to say this in view of the attacks that have been made upon Viscount Haldane.

Frisco Submits Its Reorganization Plan

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., Nov. 11.—Plans for the re-organization of the St. Louis & San Francisco railroad submitted to the Missouri public service commission here today, provide for a reduction in capitalization of $20,678,000 or 8.21 per cent, and for a reduction in fixed charges of 47.16 per cent.

The capitalization of the Kansas City, Fort Scott & Memphis, once an independent line, but now a part of the "Frisco" system, is not affected as a result of the reduction in the capitalization of the St. Louis & San Francisco proper exceeds 6 per cent.

A feature of the re-organization is that holders of present general refunding mortgages' bonds and of the general bonds are to exchange part of them for new obligations, on which interest charges are to be paid only out of the income. Under the plan, interest charges are not to be paid, until operating expenses first are met.
